History of India Ancient history India has a long history where several empires ruled and have influenced the culture of the people of India. Some of the important periods in Indian history are as follows. Ancient History The Rigvedic culture occurred around 2000 BC. The Indian subcontinent, which included the Himalayan ranges and peninsular India, was inhabited by the Austro-Asiatic peoples, with the exception of the Indonesogenic, and the Dhangaric tribes, which settled in the Gangetic basin. The people migrated to India about 15000 BC. The political history of India is a history of various independent Indian states, and the confederation of India, which are now states or union territories and the country itself. The most notable of these states are, in chronological order, the Kingdom of Kalinga, the Mauryan Empire, and the Gupta Empire. Mauryan Empire Toward the end of the 3rd century BC, the Maurya Empire arose in North India. The Maurya Empire was

The governments of India and Bangladesh have pledged to step up efforts to combat climate change, part of a landmark climate agreement with Pakistan. India and Bangladesh are among the world's fastest growing economies and both are among the most vulnerable to climate-change impacts in terms of crops, water supplies, and coastal communities. With Bangladesh having the lowest per-capita carbon emissions, the government said it aimed to reduce the country's emissions by 70% in the next decade. India's pledge is to cut its emissions by 34% by 2020 from its 2005 levels. "Bilateral climate negotiations that are beginning in New Delhi are expected to lead to further action to combat climate change," said Paula Makowsky of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. Since 2005, Bangladesh has reduced CO2 emissions per capita by more than 30% and India has done the same by 5%. Pakistan has so far pledged a 30% reduction in emissions from 2005 levels. The leaders of the three countries signed a statement on the sidelines of the conference in Bangkok, promising to build on that promise with an agreement in 2013 that was adopted by the meeting of the South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation this week.

Q: Using SSE instructions on AMD GPUs Is it possible to use SSE instructions on the new AMD GPUs? Is it possible to compile SSE instructions on them? If possible is it possible to run SSE on AMD GPUs through some native GPU drivers? A: I don't think you can run SSE on the new AMD GPUs. I don't think you can compile SSE on AMD GPUs either. However, it is possible to compile SSE code for NVIDIA GPUs.
